LINE THAT DIVIDES

Most Americans are asking:
What is trying to be accomplished in Korea? After the military phase ends there, what is going to happen? The answer to that isn't so clear, and no authoritative person has made a plain and definite statement about it.

Are U. S. forces, if they gain the upper hand, to drive to the 38th parallel and then stop? If they stop, are they to go home and leave South Korea open to invasion again? Or are they to remain and occupy the land of the South Koreans—who certainly don't want them.

Or—should they stop at the 38th parallel at all? General Eisenhower points out, in connection with Korea, that no war is ended until the enemy's intentions have been defeated. If the North Koreans withdraw with undefeated intentions, defy the UN, and refuse to mediate or reach an agreement, won't the job have to be done over again?

From a military standpoint, it has in the past been considered sheer bungling not to follow up a retreating enemy. From a political standpoint, it is equally unsatisfactory.

These questions should properly be answered by the UN. But if the UN is to genuinely liberate Korea, it must unite the country and let the people of all Korea choose the government they want.

SWEET STORIES

A couple of stories about sugar hoarding were told by a reputable salesman of a reputable wholesale grocery firm.

He said he was in a small country store when a car pulled up and nobody got out but a very small boy—only so high—who came inside.

"Please, sir," the boy said,
"give me 10 pounds of sugar for this dollar."

The grocer replied, no, he was sorry but he didn't have any sugar.

"Well, then give me five pounds for the dollar."

"It's like I told you, son, I ain't got no sugar."

The narrator said he wasn't ready for what the little boy did next. He backed off, got a running start, and made a belly flop on top of the counter. He slid himself across it till he could look down behind it.

The salesman's other story was about the truck he said was going around selling 100-pound bags of sugar for $15 each.

Housewives have an answer.
They can break this thing up by refusing to hoard.

A family consultant says women should give their husbands as much attention as they do their children, but there are many men who would not put up with such neglect.

Americans are told higher taxes are on the way. Well, they always have been.

Bananas were first imported to this country 80 years ago. What pedestrians slipped on before that isn't stated.

of the Bell System, made it possible to eliminate the solder. "One drop of solder isn't much to get excited about, but how about 89 million?" Mr. Aertsen pointed out. "And solder is not the only saving. The old ones, because of the solder, had to be assembled by hand while the new one can be assembled by machine in less than one-tenth the time."

A change in the metal used for contact points in the springs in relays has also resulted in tremendous savings, although only a microscopic amount of metal is used in each one, the telephone man added. It is estimated there are some 200 million relays used by the Bell System, each with from four to 24 contact points. Some of these contact points operate as many as 30 million times annually.

Originally platinum was used for these vitally important contact points. Later it was found that palladium would do the job at half the cost and recently scientists at the Bell Telephone Laboratories discovered a way to make the contacts of nickel with a thin cap of palladium. About a billion contacts a year are made by the Western Electric Company, so that the savings are considerable.

The substitution of nylon for rubber in certain dial parts reduced the cost of the parts to one-sixteenth, while the introduction of a synthetic rubber known as neoprene as an insulator for wire, extends the life of the wire by many years. Although in this case the Officials at Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker's headquarters in Korea believe that United Nations forces have gained some time through their massive withdrawal across the Nakdong River.

But they also know that the Reds are once again mustering more manpower to press a new offensive. The withdrawal gave American and South Korean forces the best defensive line they have yet had by presenting a nearly continuous front to an enemy who until now has been able to use overwhelming manpower to walk around defense lines without opposition.

By executing the withdrawal across the Nantong, Walker traded space, which it was doubtful he could hold, for time and for a continuous line.

First evidence of the new mobility Walker won was his shifting of the 25th Infantry Division from the northern front to the southern front east of Chinju which the battered 24th Division had been holding several days.

Child Who Is Always Afraid Over-Depends on His Mother

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

MANY a child from one to five is beset with unusual fears of being hurt. He is afraid he might fall, afraid of riding a kiddy car, tricycle, wagon; afraid to scoot down a slide, afraid of a teeter totter, afraid to wade in water; afraid to climb or sit on a fence or a horse even when securely held there; afraid of almost any strange object or situation. He is truly pathetic.

Because of his fears he is shy of other children and is emotionally over-dependent on his mother. His fears retard his venturing and exploring, retard his learning of many new experiences. Naturally, his fears spread and he may be burdened with all sorts of insecurities and anxieties.

Very Young

Usually his fears began, and were nurtured by his parents when he was very young. He was grabbed up and soothed by his mother every time he tumbled or got the slightest bump. How easy it is for a mother when a tiny toddler is slightly injured to betray to him by her words and voice and movements her great fear that he might be badly hurt. So also she has great fear that he will suffer pain when he receives innoculation shots or must have a bit of first aid or surgical care, or when he must have a tooth filled or extracted. Think of the fears the average mother betrays to her child when he is about to have his adenoids or tonsils removed.

The wise mother works hard on herself to reveal no fear in the youngster's presence, when this youngster receives the slightest or most severe physical injury. When, for example, he as a mere infant falls from the bed or baby buggy she calmly picks him up and cares for him almost with the calmness and skill of a nurse.

When, as he rolls on the floor, he bumps his head against the furniture, she shows no concern. Unless there is a cut or serious bruise she acts as if she had not noticed what happened, in which event the infant may not even cry. While she vigilantly protects him from climbing dangerously when he begins to creep and walk, she lets him pick himself up if he can when he falls, and doesn't allow others to pick him up then or make a fuss over him. Even if he skins his hands or knees she evinces no apparent excitement. I have seen a little child so treated get up from a fall with blood seeping from hands or knees without crying but sometimes even smiling or laughing.

Walking Ahead

One time I saw a young father, whose two-year-old son walking ahead of him through the door fell and bumped his nose, step over this lad and walk on. The child got up alone and didn't cry at all. (My bulletin, "Fears," may be had in a stamped envelope sent me in care of this paper.) But this father is very kind to his son and companionable with him. Besides, he romps with the boy, tosses him about, pushes him up to touch the ceiling while holding him only by one or both ankles. Some other fathers thus harden their little children. There can be danger, of course. Great skill and discretion need to be exercised.

The child who from early infancy is allowed to harden himself against fears of bodily pain is well prepared to escape many fears. He is the more ready to defend himself among other children and has good preparation for normal fun among playmates of his own age. Most adults who wear their feelings on their sleeves had these feelings embroidered there in babyhood.

received. The remainder of the $25,000 was made possible through other voluntary subscriptions.

At present Newtown School Board is negotiating with representatives of the center to conduct a kindergarten in the building. The establishment of a kindergarten in the borough was sanctioned by the school board some months ago.

The two-story building will provide ample room for the young people. On the first floor will be a dance hall capable of accommodating at least 75 couples. This floor will also contain an office and cloak rooms. Two rooms will be made available on the second floor, and arrangements have been made for a kitchen in the basement.

As yet, no definite plans for operating the center have been made, but local residents hope a paid attendant will be available. The State, it has been said, will pay 49 per cent of the attendant's salary and the community will pay the remaining 51 per cent.

their way to homes throughout the East, and local sales handled right at the plant give this area a good sampling of the All-Lite window.

About 20 men are employed in manufacturing the aluminum windows. More will be added when a huge new extrusion press is installed in a recently completed building.

This new press, unique in this area will weigh 50 tons and will be capable of forcing heated metal through molds with 800 to 1000 tons of pressure. One large 100-horsepower motor and several smaller units will run the 90-foot long press, which will include an electric heating system that can raise the temperature of metal from room level to 800 degrees in 15 seconds.

A stretching attachment will be able to pull two feet additional length out of every 100 feet of aluminum alloy fed into it. The new equipment to be installed will enable the company to fabricate its own metal parts, which it now buys from other concerns. Usual metal working equipment including saws, drills, lugs, presses and other machinery are used in the assembly line techniques at the plant.

The new building, which adjoins the present structure, will add 5,000 more square feet of space to the 11,000 square feet now in use.

The company moved to the six-acre site in 1947 after leaving its buildings on the Hunter tract, which it had occupied since its inception in August of 1945. Plans are now being made to landscape the plant grounds on Emile road and Green Lane.

Mass production methods and standardization have lowered the cost on the aluminum windows, which previously were custom made.

The company is a family organization with the president, Paul Mathias, who has been in the window business since 1903, being the father of Paul, Jr., the secretary-treasurer, and Calvin G. Mathias, plant manager.

SUNDAY DINNER Suggestions

WHEN it comes to serving food to the family every housewife knows that "variety is the spice of life." That's especially true for warm summer days when appetites are a little more fickle than usual. The problem Mrs. Housewife faces is varying the meals so that they will be attractive at all times.

As a change, this week A & P's Service for Homemakers recommends a cooling Chicken Curry Salad as a main dish for this Sunday's dinner.

To prepare this satisfying salad combine the following ingredients: Three cups of cooked chicken in large pieces, three cups of cooked rice, two cups of cooked peas, two cups of sliced celery, half a cup of chutney, one and a half teaspoons of salt, three quarters of a cup of French dressing, half to one teaspoon of curry powder.

After combining these ingredients toss and then chill. Serve over a layer of crisp salad greens. If desired, a shrimp curry salad can be made in the same manner with the substitution of three cups of cleaned canned, glassed or cooked shrimp for the chicken.

There's sufficient salad here for six servings.

For a delicious finale to this refreshing meal, try serving a wedge of fresh blueberry pie a la mode with a tall glass of either iced coffee or tea, or chocolate milk.

Rainfall Again Exceeds One Inch in Bristol Area

period from 8 a. m. yesterday until 8 a. m. today.

July hung up a record of 4.72 inches of rainfall. There were three days in July when more than an inch of rain fell. July 10, 1.16 inches, July 11, had 1.13 inches of rain and 1.02 inches were recorded on July 17th.

In the outlying area fields were flooded, farm work stopped and roads were submerged. Mill Creek Road, State Road at Street Road and the Emille-Fallsington Road were covered in certain sections.

According to County Agent William F. Greenawalt, the greatest crop beneficiaries of the rain of yesterday will be the corn, potatoes and vegetables. Although they have not been suffering because of the lack of rain, these crops were in need of moisture.

Corn, now entering its tassel stage, will soon be forming ears, and a comparatively large amount of moisture is required for the ears to develop properly. Corn in general, said Mr. Greenawalt, looks thrifty throughout the county. The rain, if heavy enough, will also have a tendency to increase the size of potatoes, which also look good, and the apples and peaches.

In connection with the latter, Mr. Greenawalt said this morning the set is spotty throughout this and nearby localities. This, it was said, may be due to weather conditions and poor pollination. A few of the early varieties of apples are being harvested and the early peaches will be ready for picking in several weeks.

Most of the grain harvest in the county has been completed with little difficulty because of ideal weather conditions.

The yield of grain has been described as not too heavy this season because of the appearance of scab during the wet weather when the heads began to form the fore part of June. There was some infestation of what is known as loose smut, which made its appearance in barley fields in particular. The percentage of infestation, said Mr. Greenawalt, was not greater than usual.

Between 60 and 70 per cent of the grain harvested this season will be fed to cattle on the farms, and the remainder will find its way to the market.

Grains that will be stored will bear watching because of the danger of the infestation by the anguino grain moth, the larva of which eats into the kernels. The liquid from the larva also causes the grain to heat.

According to Mr. Greenawalt, grain which is infested should be fumigated about a month after it has been placed in the bin. The first fumigation, it was pointed out, should be followed by a second fumigation about a month later.

board granted the request. Another letter received from the East Bristol Township P. T. A. stated that they expect to install the playground equipment at the new Edgely School in a very short time. The board accepted the equipment with a vote of thanks.

Barbara Louise Sterling was the teacher engaged. She will teach home economics in the junior high school. Jean Alice Greenawalt, fourth grade teacher, in Maple Shade, resigned to take a position near her home.

Walter D. Miller, regional superintendent, reported that the general maintenance work is progressing and that the basement rooms in the Edgely school were painted by members of the P. T. A. and the faculty. Dr. Raymond W. Robertson, of the State Board of Education, will be here on Friday, August 11th, to look over the Croydon site for the new school," said Mr. Miller.

On the report on the insurance carried by the board it was recommended that the board increase the liability insurance on the buses. The board decided to accept this recommendation and have the amount increased to $3,000 for any one accident.

A number of complaints have been received that a lot of people are using the driveway at Maple Shade School for a public thoroughfare and it is causing a lot of trouble. The secretary was instructed to write a letter to Chief of Police, Joseph Seader, to see if he can stop the practice.

President Spencer announced that a special meeting of the board will be held on August 10th. Dr. Charles H. Boehm, county superintendent of schools will attend this meeting.

developers of the project, report that orders have already been placed for several of the homes. The houses are expected to sell for about $8000 apiece.

Once the construction work is underway Bloom says that one and a half houses will be put up each week. The project will be on the left side of Rogers road, facing toward Langhorne, and will occupy part of the Obidzenski farm. The development will be known as Belardley.

Capt. E. W. Rounds, general chairman of the fund campaign, asked those present to back the drive for funds in any way they could. A motion was presented by George Setman, Quakertown, and was passed unanimously to have the group there become a "citizens' committee" to work toward the goal.

Other speakers at the informal dinner meeting were Judge Edward Biester, who presided, F. P. Kemmerer, president of the county council, and vice presidents Ray Z. Hartman, Warren F. Bietsch and George S. Hobensack.

The members of the sponsoring committee were Edward G. Biester, George L. Bidwell, Harold N. Crocker, Arthur M. Eastburn, Sr., Walter A. Fretz, Joseph R. Grundy, Francis P. Kemmerer, Thomas R. Jones, Charles M. Meredith, Maurice N. Sienkiewicz, Jack S. Steele, Thomas B. Stockham, 3d, and E. L. Helwig.

The invocation was by the Rev. M. M. Hostetter, of the Doylestown Presbyterian Church, and the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Charles Rogers, of the Quakertown Episcopal Church.

Meetings will be held Monday by the seven Boy Scout districts to prepare the prospect lists and make soliciting plans.

Look To Canned Meat Shelf For Menu Variety

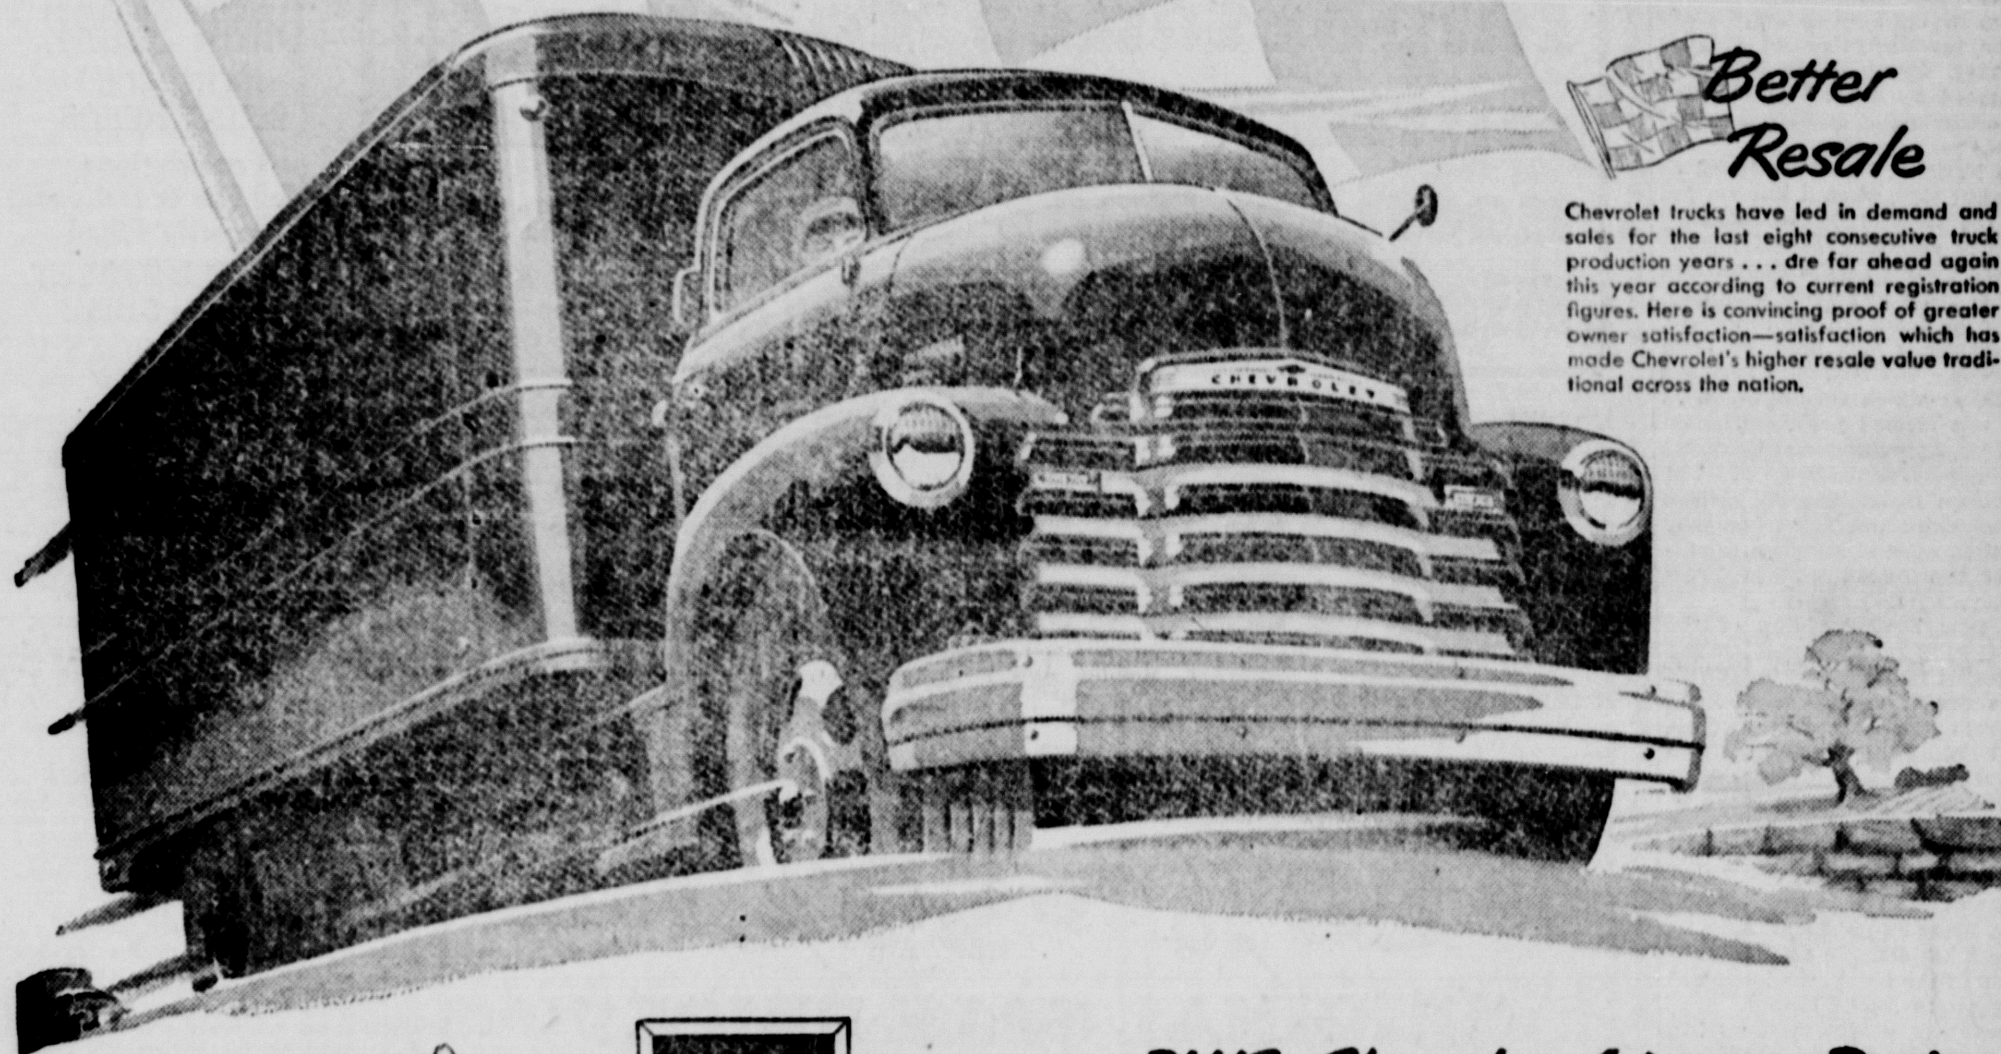

Exploring the grocer's canned meat shelf, homemakers may discover numerous tempting main dish ideas. Along with being handy to use, canned meats provide many food nutrients needed daily in the diet.

Reba Staggs, home economist, suggests that homemakers heat slices of luncheon loaf in a vegetable gravy or a barbecue sauce. Or the loaf may be diced, added to a cream sauce and served over Chinesse noodles or toasted corn bread.

Luncheon loaf kabobs are another clever serving. The cubes are threaded on skewers with minute onions, green pepper squares, stuffed olive halves and mushrooms, brushed with mustard and rolled in melted fat, then slowly broiled.

Chili con carne presents more main dish possibilities. Bun halves may be spread with thickened chili, topped with cheese slices and half bacon strips, then broiled. Two more favorable combinations are spicy Vienna sausages arranged over a rice or potato casserole or sausage slices combined with peas in cream sauce and served over split biscuits, shortcake style.

Honor Banker At Doylestown Dinner

scriptions were subscribed in six days.

The board organized Nov. 26, 1832, at Worman's Tavern, Doylestown, and Abraham Chapman was elected president on the second ballot. Daniel Byrnes, of Wilmington, Del., was elected cashier and Mahlon Long, clerk.

On Dec. 3, 1832, three properties were considered as the likely place to rent for bank offices. The Mary Shaw property now located at the corner of East State st. and Pine st., was rented at a cost of $200 for 15 months, with $50 discount allowable if Mrs. Shaw could occupy the kitchen and a room above.

The Harvey lot of the west side of Main st. adjacent to the Fountain House was chosen as a new bank site in 1833 and the bank was completed Feb. 22, 1834.

The bank purchased another lot in 1896 from the Ross estate, and a new banking house was erected on the site now the Bucks County Administration Building.

In 1864 the charter of the Doylestown Bank of Bucks County was surrendered and the bank was reorganized under the act of Congress and the new bank was known as The Doylestown National Bank.

In 1903 while under the guidance of Henry Lear, president, and George Brock, cashier, The Doylestown National Bank became involved and was closed July 30, 1903, and a receiver appointed John M. Jacobs was elected president in 1903 and the bank reopened for business Oct. 15, 1903, the stockholders having been assessed $220,000, or the equivalent of $74.33% per share. This paid the deficiency, re-instated the capital of $105,000, with a balance of undivided profits of $7404.95.

The National Bank continued as such until 1926, when it was merged with the Central Trust Company and after obtaining fiduciary powers, was known as the Doylestown National Bank and Trust Company. After the death of John N. Jacobs, the presidency was filled by John M. Jacobs, his son, who resigned in 1929, at which time William F. Fretz was elected president.

In 1932, approximately 100 years from the organization of The Doylestown National Bank, The Doylestown National Bank and Trust Company was called upon to liquidate the assets of the Bucks County Trust Company.

The new bank building of the Bucks County Trust Company which was erected in 1929, was purchased by The Doylestown National Bank and Trust Company and the old bank building of the Doylestown National Bank and Trust Company was sold to the County of Bucks.

The present quarters of the bank is on East Court street, in a modern building in every detail and on the date of the resignation of William F. Fretz as president, July 19, 1950, and his election to the chairmanship of the board, the bank was the largest in Bucks county.

Others who paid tribute to Mr. Fretz in addition to Senator Grundy were J. Carroll Molloy and Edward R. Kirk, both board members. President A. Walter Fretz also responded to the call of Toastmaster Moyer.

ers will be Paul Benetich, of the Walker-Gordon Farms, near Plainsboro, N. J., and Jack Fairchild, secretary and general field man of the Penna. State Holstein Association.

Although residents of Dublin borough were considerably shocked to learn that within a quarter of a mile of that peaceful community, an illicit alcohol distillery was discovered Monday morning by State Police and Liquor Control Board agents, things in general were back to normal this morning.

The $30,000 plant capable of cheating the United States Government out of approximately $10,000 every day that it was in operation (for night to be more exact), has been completely dismantled by the officers.

Trucks conveyed the still, the boilers, and other equipment to the headquarters of the Liquor Control Board in Philadelphia, while scores of surprised neighbors looked on in amazement.

BLOOMFIELD, N. J. — (INS) — An automobile is equipped with hundreds of "eyes" these days, to help sharpen the motorist's night vision. The checkerboard pattern of each sealed beam headlight is made up of 121 lens-like prisms, says the engineers. Each prism projects a beam which blends with the others into the best light for country or city driving.

HARDING!

The hoarders go from store to store exactly as they did before to buy up items which they say are likely to be scarce some day. And, if their number grows in size, in time they'll have to realize that what they did was bound to be the cause of any scarcity. There is no scarcity of skilled oil burner service when you get a maintenance contract from Paul C. Voltz, Bristol Pike. No labor repair bill, no waiting for service, and all this for only $10.50 a year's what the contract guarantees... clean, oil and adjust burner, wire brush and vacuum clean boiler, snake pipe and hose of chimney, maintain assured oil burner in good operating condition for one year from acceptance date (exclusive of parts), furnish 24 hour around the clock emergency service during the life of the agreement. All of the above plus Texaco fuel oil means unexcelled heat for you. Phone Bristol 2123 or 2183.

Attention, Home Owners!

Why worry about coal shoveling? We will convert your coal burner to an oil burner in 4 hours. We will install a new Silent Flame oil burner with G. E. Motor, 3 controls and 275-gallon tank complete.

True History of Flowers Elusive, Says Miss Johnson

WYCOMBE, Aug. 4 — "The true history of flowers is elusive, although there are many interesting flower legends," Miss Mary A. Johnson told members of Lingo-hocken Garden Club, when they met at the residence of Mrs. William C. Varcoe, here, at the end of the week. She added: "The history of flowers is also filled with tales of interesting people and places."

The tulip, Miss Johnson informed the group, has an interesting and long history. It originated in Persia, and was taken from there to Turkey. There it was seen by an early ambassador, whose lack of knowledge of the language made him think its name was "tulipens." In reality, said Miss Johnson, it was a Turkish name meaning turban because when inverted the bloom looked like a turban. He took seed and bulbs to France and Holland. Both nations began developing it, and the famous tulip craze developed, and fabulous sums were paid for a single bulb.

The tulip, it was said, came to America with the early Dutch settlers, and the Dutch and French are responsible for the much improved forms seen today.

The lilac is of Chinese origin, and was taken from there to Persia and by way of Turkey to France and Holland. A French hybridist, LeMoine, developed the lilac into many fine forms and its development is still in progress. Yet the old form, said Miss Johnson, is still the best loved and most widely spread. In Persia it is a sacred flower.

The French who have always loved the lilac, probably brought it to America, because Montcalm wrote before the battle of Quebec of its presence there.

Dried larkspur blooms, members were informed, have been found in many early Egyptian tombs, but its origin is not definitely known. The geranium is African in origin, roses are Chinese, and the marigold, zinnia and poinsettia are Mexican. The dahlia is of Spanish origin, and the fringed gentian is a native of this country.

An equally interesting talk on "Flowers of the Pacific Northwest" was given by Miss Elizabeth A. Woodman, who had recently visited Yosemite, Yellowstone, and Glacier National parks.

Today's Quiet Moment

By the Rev. Edward C. Kolbe
Pastor

St. Luke's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Croydon

A motto which is seen in many a home reads: "Christ is the Head of this house, the unseen Guest at every meal, the silent Listener to every conversation."

Wherever husband, wife, and children live their lives in the full consciousness of that motto, you have a Christian home.

In such a home you will find a living Christianity a religion which expresses itself in family prayers at mealtime; in the Christian nurture of the young; in wholesome Christian conversation; in regular family attendance at Church and Sunday School.

In such a home father, mother, and children will consciously share the determination of Joshua who said, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

Christianity was never meant to be a part-time religion. It is a religion for every waking hour of every day of every week. And it is a family as well as a personal affair. Is yours a Christian home?

SPORTSMEN'S BRIEFS

BY JOE ELBERSON

The tournament... this Sunday, August 6th (rain or shine) the Third Annual Casting Tournament of the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association will get underway at 12 o'clock noon at Bristol Memorial Park, just off of Jefferson avenue, between Garden and Mansion streets.

The event, of major importance to bait and flycasting enthusiasts in this section of Pennsylvania, is expected to attract competition from several neighboring states for the many fine prizes.

Ollie Hobbs very ably heads up the local committee in charge of the tournament, and he will be given excellent assistance by Ken Brandau, Arnold North and others. As a matter of fact, Hobbs has issued a special appeal for help from the general membership of the Association so that the various events can be run off smoothly.

Events on the program include: % and % Accuracy; Dry Fly Accuracy; Skirt; % Distance (both with restricted and unrestricted tackle) and % Novelty.

Everyone is eligible to participate, and spectators are cordially invited to witness the tournament.

Scores... F. R. Davies won first place money in the A Class of the Lewis Class blueback shoot, over the traps of the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association last Sunday in the Association's regular end-of-the-month shoot. Davies posted a 48 out of a possible 50. J. McCue and William Broadish shared second and third places, respectively, in the A Class with scores of 47 and 42. G. Detro had a 42.

A six-way tie for top money in the B Class resulted when I. Book, W. Doran, J. Lynn, J. King, W. MacSherry and H. Ely all turned in scores of 41. V. Carney had second spot all to himself in the B Class with a 36.

A total of 28 shooters blasted away at 1000 targets during the afternoon's program. William Warner had a perfect 25 in the 16-yard practice events. Other practice scores included: G. Cobligh, 24; L. Robinson, 22; F. Everitt, 21.

Meeting... the August meeting of the Bucks County Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs will be held in Doylestown next Monday evening at 8 o'clock. Delegates from all affiliated clubs are asked to be present for several important items of business, including distribution of the Federation-raised pheasants for member clubs.

Another meeting... next Tuesday, August 8, members of the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association will gather in the meeting room of the American Legion Post Home, Radcliffe street. At this meeting, too, a good turnout of the membership is essential to the completion of some important Association projects. All interested, non-member sportsmen have a cordial invitation to attend.

Increasing... in extending the 1950 grouse and turkey seasons the Game Commission was influenced by reports from game protectors and outdoorsmen that Pennsylvania's 1950 grouse and wild turkey increase was satisfactory. Fair to large-size broods of both of these magnificent game birds have been observed in many areas, leading to the belief that turkey and grouse populations are definitely on the upswing.

Favorable spring weather undoubtedly had much to do with the hatching results, but improved food and cover conditions in many sections and the wild turkey stocking and feeding programs played very important roles.

Removed... the Fish and Wildlife Service has finally taken off the Labrador duck, the great auk and the passenger pigeon from the list of birds protected under the Migratory Bird Treaty with Canada. Reason: these birds are extinct. Replacing them on the list are the pink-footed shearwater, the parakeet goosander and the fork-tailed flycatcher, reports the National Wildlife Federation, which warns Americans that these birds are now under the protective wing of the federal government. Under a similar treaty with Mexico the inclusion of this bird settles a controversy that has been raging in Arizona between the Game Commission and the Arizona Wildlife Federation. The Commission, some time ago, provided an open season on these colorful birds and the Federation vigorously opposed the order. Sixty-one other birds have been placed on the migratory bird list which now covers nearly every song bird, as well as shore birds.

The lovely and beautiful cardinal which has not heretofore been on the list, is among the birds placed on it. The Fish and Wildlife Service has issued a leaflet on Birds Protected by Federal Law which lists all the birds. It was written by Frederick C. Lincoln, widely-known author and ornithologist who has been with the Service for many years. A copy of the leaflet may be obtained by writing the Service at Washington 25, D. C.

VET PREFERENCE

CHICAGO, (INS) — At least 10 states have modified veterans preference provisions of their state-wide merit systems since 1947, a recent survey by the Civil Service Assembly reveals. Generally, these changes have been confined to minor modifications in preference given veterans in public employment. However, in two states — Illinois and New York — veterans hiring preference has been substantially reduced. The survey, which included all 20 states having state-wide merit systems, showed that all these states grant veterans preference.

RITTLER CONTINUES TO LEAD HITTERS IN SOFTBALL LEAGUE

Despite a drop of 41 points in the past two weeks, Dick Rittler, Tullytown outfielder, continues to lead the batters of the Bristol Suburban Softball League. Rittler has hit safely 20 times in 42 attempts for a .476 mark.

Closest rival to Rittler is Nate Chichiletti, of Second Ward, who is sporting a .422 average. Chichiletti has been among the leaders since the start of the season but did not possess enough times at bat until today's release of averages.

Phil DiNatale, also of the Luciano Brothers team of Tullytown, is third on the list followed by "Bill" Wallick, of Franklin, and "Steve" Clott, of Jefferson.

Ernie Pinelli, Second Ward, is undefeated in his mound toils, having won six straight games. "Chick" Stansky, also of Second Ward, is behind Pinelli with 5 victories and two losses. "Eddie" Kornchuck, Fire Company, No. 1, has hurled in 12 games, winning six and losing the same number.

Game Called Off Due To Weather Last Night

The Bristol Suburban Softball League game between Second Ward and Franklin, scheduled for last evening, was called off because of wet grounds. The game will be played at a later date.

This evening, one game is on tap with Auto Boys meeting Franklin A. C. on Memorial Park field. Franklin will be attempting to gain ground on the league-leading Second Ward team and has a chance of reducing the lead to a full game.

Some Surplus Food Goes To Bucks County Home

DOYLESTOWN, Aug. 4 — Bucks county is receiving a portion of the surplus food that is being distributed by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Most of the surplus is received by the Bucks County Home, and includes butter, potatoes, prunes, dried milk, honey, canned apple sauce, spinach, turkeys, beets and dried eggs.

The Bucks County Prison also receives shipments from time to time but the penal institutions are limited to potatoes only. Warden Earl D. Handy, of the County Prison, said today that he had placed an order for a shipment of potatoes, but that no confirmation had been received as yet. The potatoes are purchased by the prison at a very small figure.

Of the various items received by the County Home, butter is the most useful although all the food received is used. The County Home has its own farm, however, on which potatoes and beets are grown, so that those two items of surplus food are not as helpful as butter, honey and turkeys. The surplus butter is received in 60-pound containers.
